2005 nissan murano dvd player manual pdf format pdf

The design also features vertical stack headlights with available xenon bulbs. Other performance features include 4-wheel independent suspension for a smooth, comfortable ride and available all-wheel drive system. Responsive handling and a comfortable ride are provided by the Nissan Murano’s standard 4-wheel independent suspension, which includes an advanced multi-link rear suspension, cradle-type front subframe and high-stiffness stabilizer bars. Murano comes standard with a 245-horsepower 3.5-liter DOHC V6 for superior acceleration and offers the first North American standard application of Nissan’s Xtronic™ CVT (Continuously Variable Transmission), which provides smooth, quiet, responsive acceleration while virtually eliminating shift shock and providing better gas mileage than conventional transmissions. Key Murano differentiators include its sculpted exterior and interior styling, responsive acceleration and handling, high perceived safety and security, comfort that pampers the driver and passengers or advanced technology features that are easy to use. “When Murano debuted, it truly set the mark in terms of its combination of outstanding performance and unique styling,” said Mark McNabb, vice president and general manager, Nissan Division. The Sunroof Package (SL and SE) includes contents from the Premium Package plus sunroof; the SL and SE Leather Packages offer the contents from the Sunroof Package plus leather-appointed seats, 4-way adjustable power passenger’s seat and dark silver-colored lower bumper. SL and SE Touring Packages which include the contents from the SL and SE Leather Packages plus Intelligent Key, driver’s seat memory system (seat, adjustable pedals and outside mirrors), heated front seats and outside mirrors and Nissan Mobile Entertainment System pre-wiring. The Murano comes with many standard safety features, including a new standard rollover sensor. A front-wheel drive model is also offered. For 2005, Murano adds a new base S model in 2WD and AWD, standard rollover sensing on the curtain air bag system, and a new Convenience Package (S model only). Every Murano comes fully equipped with the 245-horsepower 3.5-liter V6, Xtronic CVT, 4-wheel disc brakes with ABS, EBD and BA, 4-wheel independent suspension, power rack-and-pinion steering and a standard 21.7 gallon fuel tank for an exceptional driving range between refueling. The instrument panel includes real aluminum trim, an available 225-watt Bose® audio system with 7 speakers and a standard information monitor, with HVAC, audio, trip control and navigation system (optional) controls integrated into its one-piece “floating” design and satellite radio pre-wiring is standard (satellite radio reception available when properly equipped with antenna and receiver and service activated). Performance Minded EngineeringThe 2005 Nissan Murano comes in a choice of AWD for enhanced all-weather performance or front-wheel drive. This benefit is especially apparent in long uphill drives where the traditional hunting for the proper gear is virtually eliminated. Zone Body Construction with front and rear crumple zones help dissipate the crash energy away from the passenger compartment. A manual shift mode is offered on SE Models. “The enhancements for 2005 make it even more attractive to a wide range of buyers.”Distinctive AppearanceThe Nissan Murano’s unique, modern design is made possible, in part, by the use of Nissan’s advanced FF-L (front engine, front-drive) platform, which it shares elements with the popular Maxima. Murano combines the uncompromising functional aspects of a true SUV with the ride comfort of a sport sedan in a highly refined, well-equipped package. The FF-L platform pushes the wheels out to the corners, allowing a long wheelbase and wide stance within a manageable overall length. The split fold-down rear seat includes a reclining feature and a remote flip-down function, so the seats can be released from the rear cargo area. Additional storage areas include a tray and two bins under the cargo floor and spaces in the center console for cell phones, sunglasses, coins, cups and bottles. The Murano interior is offered in a selection of three colors: Charcoal and Café Latte in a choice of cloth or with leather-appointed seats and Cabernet (leather-appointed only). The exterior, guided by a “sculpture in motion” theme, offers a wraparound surface construction, an architectural front grille and a sporty upswept shaped D-pillar that blends with the rounded rear cargo door to project a very three-dimensional feel. The Dynamic Control Package, which includes Vehicle Dynamic Control (VDC) with Traction Control system and Tire Pressure Monitoring System (TPMS), is available with the purchase of the Touring Package, as is the Technology Package, which includes a DVD Navigation system and RearView Monitor. Unlike conventional stepped gear automatics, the new Xtronic CVT operates as essentially “one gear” through use of a belt and two pulleys. Consistent with Murano’s high standards of luxury and technology a new Convenience Package was added for 2005, along with enhanced content for previously available packages, including Intelligent Key entry and ignition. Additionally, two previously available option packages receive upgrades in 2005. To maintain Murano’s fresh look in 2005, Nissan adds three new colors to its color palette. A new base S model, available in front and all-wheel drive, extends the 2005 Murano model lineup. All models come equipped with a standard 3.5-liter DOHC V6 engine, derived from the award-winning engine used in the 2005 Altima and Maxima sedans. You can also access FAQ and other information at the links below. Thoughtful, Welcoming InteriorAs a reflection of the active lifestyles of the target Nissan Murano buyers, the interior has been designed to provide an abundance of storage and cargo capacity, “first class seating” for two couples (but can comfortably fit five passengers), and ample, flexible luggage space. The interior, highly integrated with the exterior styling, reflects Murano’s clean, dynamic overall design. Murano’s lightweight rear cargo door, constructed from composite plastics reinforced by steel, is not only easy to open and close but further enhances the Nissan Murano’s sculpted appearance. The driver’s seat offers a wide range of adjustability with a standard 4-way power driver’s seat (10-way power on SE and SL) including power lumbar along with power adjustable throttle and brake pedals and a tilt steering wheel. The 2005 Nissan Murano crossover sport utility vehicle continues to combine the uncompromising functional aspects of a true SUV with the ride comfort of a sport sedan in a highly refined, well-equipped package. Also standard are 18-inch alloy wheels, reclining rear seat backs, dual zone automatic temperature control, AM/FM/CD audio system, power windows with auto up/down feature on front windows, keyless remote entry system, large center console and much more. The Murano SE model adds a sport-tuned suspension with firmer front/rear springs and struts and shock absorbers, manual shift mode, unique 6-spoke sporty alloy wheels, High Intensity Discharge (HID) headlights with manual headlamp levelizer and dark silver lower bumpers. The SL and SE models offer a Premium Package which includes a Bose® audio system, adjustable pedals, roof rails, cargo net and cargo cover. It features “SUV strength” below the beltline and sport sedan-like openness above. Standard 18-inch wheels and tires contribute to the contemporary, high quality exterior appearance. Murano is offered in a choice of eight dynamic exterior colors. Additionally, the Nissan Mobile Entertainment System is available. The combination of long wheelbase, wide stance and compact rear multi-link suspension design helps create a rear cargo area that offers exceptional room and utility. The three new colors (Merlot, Chardonnay and Platinum), as well as Sunlit Copper, Glacier Pearl, Sheer Silver, Super Black and Midnight Blue. The engine is rated at 245 horsepower and 246 lb-ft of torque. The Nissan Murano also advances the technology boundaries in the crossover SUV class with the first North American application of Nissan’s Xtronic CVT (Continuously Variable Transmission). The SL and SE Touring Packages now feature Intelligent Key and pre-wiring for the Nissan Mobile Entertainment System. The braking system includes 4-wheel vented disc brakes with Brake Assist (BA) and Electronic Brake force Distribution (EBD). An Array of CombinationsThe 2005 Nissan Murano is available in six well-equipped models - 2WD and AWD S, SL and SE - and several equipment packages. The Nissan Murano’s highly functional storage systems include a two-tiered lockable center console storage box with room to hold a laptop computer or purse and door pockets with fold-out function. By infinitely varying the working diameters of the two pulleys, the transmission eliminates the “steps” between gears, resulting in a smoother, more efficient operation by keeping the engine in its optimum power range under a variety of driving and load conditions. Also included are dual-stage supplemental front air bags with seat belt sensors, front-seat side-impact supplemental air bags and front and rear seat curtain side-impact/rollover supplemental air bags. Along with the platform’s inherent handling and performance advantages, it allows greater packaging and styling flexibility. Murano comes with a standard 245 horsepower 3.5-liter DOHC V6 mated to Nissan’s Xtronic CVT (Continuously Variable Transmission), a combination that provides responsive acceleration, quiet efficient operation and virtually eliminates traditional shift shock. Other available performance features include Vehicle Dynamic Control (VDC), which helps improve vehicle stability by controlling brake pressure and engine torque automatically in understeer, oversteer or slippery road surface conditions, Traction Control System (TCS) and a Tire Pressure Monitor System (included in the Dynamic Control Package). Optional equipment packages include a Convenience Package (S model only) with 10-way power adjustable seat with power lumbar and seat back pockets, adjustable pedals, roof rails, cargo cover and cargo net. Help Center General FAQs Shipping and Return Track Your Order View More Murano News The 2005 Nissan Murano sport utility vehicle continues to bring Nissan’s reputation for innovative design and advanced technology to the crossover SUV segment. Other interior amenities include standard dual zone climate controls and rear air conditioning vents located on the B-pillars. The seats are specially designed to provide ample roominess and comfort. For additional assistance, visit the Help Center to find information specific to your vehicle including how to install map updates and tips for using your navigation system. The 2005 Murano is also available in three all-new exterior colors - Merlot, Chardonnay and Platinum. Developed, designed and engineered specifically for the North American market, Murano was conceived as an exciting alternative to the growing number of look-alike crossover SUVs in the market. A rollover sensor system has also been added to Murano’s already extensive passive safety systems. Also standard are front seat belts with pretensioners and load limiters, LATCH (Lower Anchors and Tethers for CHildren) child seat anchors and tether system and front seat active head restraints.
